Lakewood launches interactive trail map

Are you looking for some new scenery? Maybe you’re commuting by bicycle and need to know the best route to where you’re going. Maybe you just want to find a place for your dog to stretch her legs. Check out the new Lakewood Trail Explorer interactive trail map at Lakewood.org/Trails.

The Lakewood Trail Explorer is your connection to rewarding trail experiences using any browser to explore the city’s more than 235 miles of recreational trails. This mobile-friendly map provides several tools for finding that new adventure in your own backyard.

You can filter trails and accessible areas by hiking/walking, bicycling, eBikes, scooters and even horseback riding. Say you just want to know where you can ride your electric bike. Click on the eBike icon to highlight the areas where eBikes are allowed. Looking to map that jog around the park? Type in the name of the park, select it, and get all the information you need to get that workout done. You’ll also be able to see recommended trail uses so you know what’s allowed on the trails.

Lakewood.org/Trails also provides information on current trail conditions, closures and other important information to keep you safe and to protect our natural resources. The trail conditions section gives you a quick glance at the status of more than 100 parks and open spaces, recommended trail uses, and park details through an interactive dashboard. Click on a trail and immediately get useful information to help plan your adventure.

“Whether familiarizing yourself with local trails, looking for the best route to bike to work, or finding trails where electric scooters are allowed, Lakewood Trail Explorer is the path to your next adventure,” said Community Resources Director Kit Newland.

Learn how to use the Lakewood Trail Explorer by watching a how-to video on the trails webpage. Follow @TrailsLakewood on Twitter for the latest trail conditions and important information to keep you safe, and get out there to see where your next adventure leads.

Creative pandemic relief for community and artists along the 40 West ArtLine

Lakewood’s 40 West ArtLine is expanding its role as a unique, free outdoor art experience by bringing relief during the pandemic after receiving a national AARP grant, which will fund a program to ease the isolation of older residents, provide activities for families and youth, support local artists and beautify public spaces.

The ArtLine is the four-mile walking and biking arts experience in the heart of the state-certified 40 West Arts Creative District adjacent to historic West Colfax Avenue and the W light rail line. This free recreational and cultural asset is marked by a green painted line on the ground and can be safely experienced with social distancing in the time of COVID-19 as it meanders through Lakewood’s historic neighborhoods and parks. Visitors can experience more than 70 pieces of artwork including ground murals, story totems, interactive sculptures, fence art and more.

The recently received AARP Community Challenge grant will help more community-created artwork to the ArtLine route this fall. The grant awarded to the city for the ArtLine is one of only 184 given to more than 2,000 applicants from across the country. These grants support quick-action projects that help communities make immediate improvements and sustain long-term progress for residents of all ages. Only four grants were awarded in Colorado.

“We are incredibly proud that AARP selected the 40 West ArtLine project,” Mayor Adam Paul said. “AARP is a nationwide leader in making neighborhoods and cities more livable for everyone, and this project will bring joy and tangible relief to our residents.”

The $9,000 grant will fund artists who are based in the 40 West Arts District to work with residents throughout September and October to enhance the ArtLine’s positive impact in northeast Lakewood. Handsome Little Devils will bring a Project Joy Bomb, a socially distanced art-based parade of sorts, to the seniors living at the Residences at Creekside and the families and youth who call Lamar Station Crossing home. The carnival-like event will deliver artist Sean Doherty’s paint by number art kits that residents will complete for display on a fence on Pierce Street as part of the art kit project will be invited to share their stories about living through the pandemic, and the artwork and stories will be shared online. Finally, artists will
Moving forward together

Greetings neighbors! I feel very lucky to have this opportunity to communicate with you during these very challenging times. I often refer to this year as the “lost year” — a year like many of us have never seen, a year filled with sadness, uncertainty, loss and change. While it’s easy and natural to focus on all of the bad, we have a lot to be proud of, and I know that we will come out of this with renewed care for one another by working together and defining ourselves through our adversity and adaptation to a new world. I am grateful for the love that you are showing those most in need, the challenging conversations that you are having and your willingness to dig deep to influence meaningful change. I am so proud of you Lakewood.

The onset of COVID-19 necessitated a shift in the priorities set forth by City Council at its 2020 planning session in early February. This included moving to focus on continuing the core city services during the height of the pandemic, providing community and business support and monitoring the effects on the city budget. Many of the goals for 2020 outlined before the pandemic remain relevant in a time of COVID-19, including long-range funding strategies for the city, which is perhaps more important than ever since the city is so dependent on sales tax revenue. Another goal was to review and better understand our economic development approaches, again very meaningful now as we see changes in how people spend, what business are open, where people work and how people travel. These are all so different from just eight months ago. The other areas include addressing homelessness, affordability and sustainable transportation safety. I applaud City Council for working in this direction, and I believe these goals are even more relevant today because of the drastic changes we face.

As we begin the annual budget conversation, the city must make some very tough decisions to adjust to a large loss in revenue as a result of COVID-19. Throughout the last few months, we have seen monthly revenues below expectations by as much as 27% in April, with only a slight improvement in the most recent months. To make up for the losses, we are cutting nearly $17 million from the 2020 and 2021 budgets. Lakewood is a service organization made up of dedicated public servants. The reductions will be achieved by permanently leaving positions vacant, delaying projects and reducing purchases. While certainly painful, I am proud of the hard work our city manager and her team have done to create a smart plan that pushes to maintain a high level of service with less funds. I encourage you to engage in the budget process, and you can learn more at LakewoodSpeaks.org for the upcoming budget hearings in October.

As we navigate the future, I want you to think about how the landscape will change. Here are a couple of examples: Our lodgers tax supports a large portion of economic development, but there is not a lot of travel happening — will travel and business trips be a thing of the past? People have adapted to working at home — what does that mean for large office spaces and the ancillary businesses that are supported by workers shopping and eating out? These are all so different from just eight months ago.

Council Corner

Community responding to needs during pandemic

“It is 2020!” That frequently heard comment prompts both head nods and head shakes, frowns as well as bemused smiles. The concerns posed by COVID-19, its impact on jobs, businesses, schools and the community in general are further complicated by social unrest and political polarization. The current level of uncertainty has affected us all. But most Lakewood residents are responding with determination, tenacity and compassion. That response includes a number of strategies by the city to help relieve the pain and stress we face.

City Council and the city’s boards and commissions, in a move forced by public health precautions, now are meeting on digital platforms in order to keep our operations on track.

As part of the scale for the pandemic-inflicted injuries, City Council has approved $750,000 in pass-through federal CARES Act funding for nonprofit groups to assist our families and others, including our residents who are homeless (see page 14). The funds, approved by Congress, will be used to feed the hungry, provide funds to keep people in their homes and meet other needs of our residents.

Another $3 million in CARES Act funding has been distributed to help local entrepreneurs retain employees and maintain businesses that are struggling to survive.

Meanwhile, the community is responding in its own way. Every day, we find multiple offers for assistance through such connections as Nextdoor, the online community hub. Even before Lakewood was incorporated more than 50 years ago, the folks in what is now Ward 1 responded when neighbors needed a hand or when a community need arose. That sense of responsibility and duty continues to this day, regardless of pandemic concerns, political divisions, economic difficulty and social concerns.

Dozens of Nextdoor users are offering to run errands, deliver essential supplies, provide transportation, do household chores, donate fresh garden veggies or provide an understanding ear for those with limited mobility and those who choose to remain sequestered during these difficult times.

Still others are taking on community responsibilities that city staff see in more normal times, including Bonvue resident Greg Kitzmiller, who in early August literally waded into a trash-laden section of McIntyre Gulch to remove a discarded toilet and associated unsanitary trash from the stream at Bonvue Park.

After contacting the city about the problem, Kitzmiller realized that short-handed cleanup crews might take some time to respond, so he took on the job himself, removing the eyesore from the water and hauling it away. That pride in the appearance of our city is admirable and predates the unusual nature of 2020. For some time, a group of Ward 1 residents and others have joined forces in the Walkin’ and Talkin’ Trash effort to remove litter and debris from the stretch of Kipling Street from West Sixth Avenue northward. The effort was initiated by Jessica Slusser who had been doing the cleanup largely on her own for years before meeting up with Carrie Sonneborn. Together, they recruited folks like Celia Greenman and made the cleanup a monthly event of the Sustainable Eiber group.

A similar effort, the Eiber Adopt-a-Gulch annual cleanup, was organized years ago by Deb Treseder and Mark Evans to remove trash along Lakewood Gulch as it runs through the Eiber neighborhood, preventing trash accumulation from blocking the waterway and lessening the risk of flooding along the gulch. And Kathryn Hayes organized a cleanup of the area around a W Line light rail station accompanied by distribution of food and supplies for the people experiencing homelessness in the area, continuing the commitment that began even before Lakewood was Lakewood.

That tremendous tradition of responsibility and duty continues to this day, regardless of pandemic concerns, political divisions, economic difficulty and social concerns.

A couple of reminders: 2020 is a census year. This is a mandate from the United States Constitution, and it is critical that you answer the census. An accurate count will help deliver the needed federal dollars to the city for the next decade. Visit Lakewood.org/Census for information and a link to answer online. Everyone counts!

I also want to remind you that there is an election in November. Colorado has been a leader in mail ballot elections for years; it is a safe, convenient and proven method to ensure your voice is heard. For more information on elections, please visit Jeffco.us/elections. Make your voice heard this November and vote!

Thank you again Lakewood, thank you Lakewood staff and thank you Lakewood Police! We are all in this together, and I’m proud of our great city and together we will make it through these challenging times.

Dear Lakewood:

Our city is so fortunate to have so many key volunteers that work to help our community. I want to express my appreciation for our neighbors and friends who help to keep our city beautiful. We are blessed to have these dedicated individuals willing to clean up our streets and parks.

Two years ago, I started a clean-up effort of the Lakewood Gulch annual cleanup, was organized years ago by Deb Treseder and Mark Evans to remove trash along Lakewood Gulch as it runs through the Eiber neighborhood, preventing trash accumulation from blocking the waterway and lessening the risk of flooding along the gulch. We are building an inclusive community!
Blue sticker signals Lakewood Local program

Lakewood Local is a program that highlights our local businesses because they help make Lakewood unique and give our community a distinct personality. This program highlights Lakewood's locally owned and homegrown businesses, showcasing their impact on our community in part through the blue Lakewood Local window sticker. Lakewood Local aims to celebrate all that our Lakewood businesses have to offer, their innovation, creativity, connection to our community and the power behind frequenting the special businesses that make Lakewood home. During the COVID-19 pandemic, we expanded the program to include the Lakewood Local Map, which has proven to be helpful in promoting business offerings and operations at Lakewood.org/SupportLocalBiz.

A nationwide example of how a program like this can evolve is American Express’ campaign for Small Business Saturday. The program’s success has shown that if you make a few simple purchases, the impact can be significant. In 2019, nationwide shoppers came together to support local communities more than ever. The 10th annual Small Business Saturday hit a record high with an estimated $19.6 billion in reported spending. Although this number reflects spending nationwide, the trend of shopping locally is seen in Lakewood as well. Imagine the impact we could make if everyone supported local small businesses.

Lakewood has businesses of every shape, size and industry, but not all small businesses are local businesses. The Lakewood Local program gives a visual representation that you are shopping or visiting a local business truly making Lakewood its home. Businesses qualify if they are independent, located in Lakewood, have full autonomy over their own business, including purchasing, operations, and visual representation, and they have been operating for at least 30 days.

Lakewood Local businesses can be small or large in terms of sales and employees, and Lakewood Local supports all local businesses, no matter their size. Here are some of the biggest impacts from making a habit of shopping locally:

It keeps money in our local economy

When a consumer shops at a Lakewood Local business, it returns more money to our local economy than shopping at a national chain, and certainly more than shopping in other cities. On average, for every $100 spent at a locally owned business, $68 will stay in the community compared to only $43 when spent at a national chain. Spending locally creates a multiplier effect because local businesses spend their dollars in the local economy to operate their businesses, purchase inventory, tap into utilities and pay their employees for services. In turn, local employees can then live and prosper in Lakewood, recirculating many of those dollars back into our Lakewood economy. When employees shop local, the trend continues, and the multiplier effect expands. This creates more jobs and more wealth in the local community.

Job creation

Lakewood Local will feature the success stories and economic good our local businesses produce. One of the most significant impacts from local businesses is the job creation they lead and influence. Some of our local businesses are also Lakewood’s largest employers. The global headquarters for Terumo BCT employs over 2,500 people, and FirstBank’s headquarters on Lakewood’s West Colfax Avenue employs 1,500 people in that location. Not only do independent local businesses employ more people directly per dollar of revenue, they are also customers of local businesses and continue to support and expand the economy in the local community.

Community impact

New playground equipment for a city park can cost tens of thousands of dollars. Shopping local keeps money in Lakewood, adding to the sales tax revenue that the city relies on to fund government projects such as new playground equipment. Local sales tax dollars fund Lakewood services such as police, street maintenance, and parks and recreation. When someone shops local, these funds are used in a way that impacts them directly while also adding to the vibrancy and amenities in Lakewood. Local business owners are also more likely “to do good” within our community by supporting local causes, volunteering, and being active members in our neighborhoods. Lakewood businesses are regularly giving back, and during the last several months we have seen this impact through their incredible resiliency. Lakewood Local is a tool that provides us the opportunity to share those successes with you.

We love our local businesses, new and long-standing. Lakewood Local is eager to showcase all the growth our local businesses are chartering in our community. Lakewood Local businesses are innovative and exciting, and they want the opportunity to earn your dollars and keep them circulating in the local economy. Celebrate with the locals and let us know your favorite Lakewood Local business locations!

For more information or to get a sticker for your own business, visit our Lakewood Local webpage at Lakewood.org/EconomicDevelopment.

Helping businesses adapt with outdoor space

The COVID-19 pandemic has had a significant impact on businesses across our community, and they are eager to welcome customers just as many customers are eager to support their favorite local spots. Lakewood’s temporary site modification process allows businesses to expand safely into spaces near their properties to accomplish this, and the temporary change increases businesses’ ability to serve the community while following all state, county and local guidelines for capacity and social distancing. The city has made the process easy and straightforward, and the application is just one page, with an attached illustration/drawing of the modification and area. The review process has been streamlined, and Lakewood’s Economic Development team has been working with businesses to inform and help them with the process. Each application is reviewed to ensure safety and to enable the monitoring and control of the flow of pedestrians, vehicles and emergency access.

This review process is also free, and the only fees associated include those for any liquor license modifications or permits that may be needed to enact the modification. This process allows businesses to temporarily expand outside to sidewalks, parking lots, streets and other adjacent spaces.

Lakewood knows there’s a need and a desire for people to sit outside and continue to engage with their community and businesses. This program helps support the local economy while also serving the community safely.

Reductions planned for 2020 and 2021 budgets

The COVID-19 pandemic has brought Lakewood to a crossroads of difficult decisions about the city's budget. City revenues, ranging from user fees to sales tax collections, have decreased significantly. These revenues are critical for funding many city services such as police, road maintenance and city facilities. Essentially, the city's "income" has decreased, and Lakewood must cut its expenses in a similar way that households and businesses with a drop in their incomes have balanced their budgets.

The city must reduce its expenses by $10.6 million now for the 2020 budget and another $6.4 million in the 2021 budget currently being prepared. With a total of $17 million in reductions, every department in the city has been affected. Lakewood, however, is committed to sustaining core services to residents while maintaining fiscal stability.

The city has been able to accomplish most of the reductions through a hiring freeze put in place at the end of 2019, allowing the city to already take a significant step in reducing the 2020 budget. Leaving positions open that become vacant will continue for next year, providing additional savings. But reductions have also been made by delaying projects and maintenance and reducing purchases. In fact, the 2021 budget for city operations will be 5% lower than the 2020 budget. Every effort has been made to minimize the impacts on core city services, but the level of service for some items could be affected.

In the short term, Lakewood can navigate through the pandemic because of its historically conservative budgeting, healthy reserves that serve as the city's savings account and the federal relief funds known as the CARES Act to pay for pandemic expenses that ensure the safety of residents and city employees and accommodate the city's continued effective functioning during public health orders. The city has approved lifting the Taxpayer's Bill of Rights (TABOR) limits on the revenues the city could collect and spend until 2025 and directed those funds to open space and park needs, police and transportation improvements. As a result, an estimated $5.5 million will be available for those uses in the 2021 budget, and the proposal is to use those funds on body-worn police cameras, improvements along the Bear Creek Greenbelt, Bear Creek Trail and the Taylor property, which is the city's newest open space property. The proposed budget will also use the funds for improvements to the Wadsworth Boulevard and Morrison Road intersection.

Beyond the financial impacts of the pandemic, the city is expecting longer term challenges with sustaining its revenue to pay for city services. Lakewood is experiencing a flattening and potential decline of current revenue sources because of several factors including consumers shifting to online shopping, more purchases of untaxed services than taxed goods and an aging population in the city that shops less. City Council is also evaluating this situation to assess potential options for supporting the city's long-term funding needs.

Ballot Question 2B

Shall the City of Lakewood adopt an ordinance adopting regulations governing the operation of retail marijuana stores and retail marijuana cultivation facilities in the City of Lakewood and making corresponding amendments to certain sections of Lakewood Municipal Code, Chapter 5.51 concerning medical marijuana businesses?

Summary

The City of Lakewood has adopted regulations governing the operation of retail marijuana stores and retail marijuana cultivation facilities, consistent with the provisions of the Colorado Marijuana Code (Article 10 of Title 44 of the Colorado Revised Statutes) and the implementing regulations issued by the Colorado Department of Revenue, as amended from time to time. The ordinance would allow only the owners of those medical marijuana businesses that were licensed and operating in good standing in Lakewood as of April 1, 2020, to apply for a license to operate a retail marijuana store or retail marijuana cultivation facility. The ordinance would also make corresponding amendments to certain sections of Lakewood Municipal Code, Chapter 5.51 concerning size, location and relocation limitations, and hours of operation of medical marijuana businesses. 🌿

Election information

Voting on Nov. 3 will involve more than the presidential election. Federal, state and county positions will be on the ballot, and Lakewood will be holding a special municipal election coordinated in conjunction with Jefferson County.

This coordinated election will be by mail ballot, and the city’s special election is the result of a citizen initiative petition to create a new city law for allowing and governing retail marijuana businesses. The question reads as shown under “Ballot Question 2B,” and voting "yes" will be a vote in favor of the question, and voting "no" means a vote against the question. More information can be found at Lakewood.org/SpecialElection.

Ballots will be mailed between Oct. 9 and Oct. 16. Registered voters who don’t receive a ballot can call the Jefferson County Clerk’s Office at 303-271-8111. Absentee ballots also are available, and applications can be picked up at the Jefferson County Clerk’s Office, 3500 Illinois Street, Suite 1100, in Golden.

The city will have a ballot drop-off box outside on the west side of 480 S. Allison Parkway, and additional drop-off locations as well as in-person voting centers can be found at Jeffco.us/election.

Increase in property values has caused some city fees to increase, which can also be found on the city website. This is the city's “income” has decreased, and Lakewood must cut its expenses in a similar way that households and businesses with a drop in their incomes have balanced their budgets.

COMMUNITY CONNECTION
Navigating program brings innovation to addressing homelessness

Finding solutions for those who are experiencing homelessness in Lakewood sometimes comes from making the routine feasible.

That was the case for a woman with disabilities who was eligible for a housing voucher but had no birth certificate to qualify for it, and she had only two days to come up with it. Navigating her way to a solution was daunting, given that she had no way to get to the state’s vital records office, no way to pay for the record and no mailing address to receive the birth certificate.

For Lakewood’s new homeless navigator, Princess Griffin, the solution was to take the woman to the vital records office and work with the staff there to get the woman’s birth certificate back. “We can’t wait the two weeks to send in an ID and then have the birth certificate mailed out,” Griffin said. Left without help or guidance, residents experiencing homelessness can “run into a brick wall and be discouraged…How am I going to get there? How am I going to pay for it? How am I going to have it mailed to me? I don’t have a proof of address.”

Because of Griffin’s work, she is now looking at apartments with the woman that the housing voucher will help pay for. It was one of Griffin’s successes as the city’s first homeless navigator, a program the city joined as part of an innovative countywide approach to addressing homelessness. Jefferson County and each municipality within the county are creating a network of local navigators starting this year. The navigators will work within their own jurisdictions while also collaborating regionally with the other city and county navigators to coordinate efforts.

The navigators work alongside first responders and service providers to deliver immediate assistance while pursuing long-term solutions for each resident. The Jefferson County Human Services Department will also examine information gathered through the navigators’ work to identify trends to recommend changes to policies or delivery of services as well as ways to address funding longer term homelessness solutions.

Lakewood City Council approved two navigator positions in the 2020 budget, but the Colorado Health Foundation awarded Lakewood $178,632 to pay for the navigators and equipment. The city’s second navigator will start work this month.

Griffin began work just as the stay-at-home order was taking effect in March, so her work has faced even greater challenges. Those experiencing homelessness visited food pantries for help, but much of the available food had to be cooked, creating a barrier. Others no longer could find a place to shower because facilities were closed, making it even harder to be able to seek a job. “Navigating the small things can be such a big thing,” she said.

But Griffin has made contact through visits to homeless encampments with the Police Department’s Community Action Team and through other means, and she is currently working with 48 residents experiencing homelessness.

Navigating those residents through their challenges can be different for each person. Sometimes it’s as simple as getting someone fed regularly for two weeks so the person can stabilize physically enough to address underlying medical issues. With others, it’s working through the complex housing market to find a stable housing solution. One solution was reuniting a resident with family in another state.

The ability to address each case is what will make the navigator network effective, Griffin said. “I think it’s great because we can make a judgment as we go,” she said, allowing each solution to be different for each person. Nonprofits must $750,000 in two rounds to nonprofits help Lakewood residents. The city's COVID-19 Nonprofit Impact Grant program is awarding $750,000 in two rounds to nonprofits from the city's share of the federal funds so they can provide pandemic relief to residents. Nonprofits must spend the grants on goods or services and not on personnel costs. The nonprofits that received grants in June during the first round have been providing stories of what the grants have meant to them and the people they serve. Read them at Lakewood.org/CovidNonprofitGrant. The second round of grants will be awarded this fall.

"What an amazing gift for the Alameda area! This will definitely be a weight lifted from our families’ shoulders;” Deane Elementary School Principal Megan Martinez said of the Kiwanis Club of Belmar Foundation using its $14,988 grant to eliminate the outstanding lunch debt for students and their families at Deane, Emory, Lasley and Rose Stein elementary schools and Alameda International Junior/Senior High School.

"Being stuck at home has increased my level of isolation exponentially and been incredibly detrimental to my mental health, so to have the Health Center open again, I'm already feeling happier and less stressed," a participant wrote about the Chandra Center for Health, which received a $3,880 grant. The center used the money to buy essential personal and other COVID-19 protective equipment, providing integrated health care services to those with long-term physical disabilities while ensuring their safety.

Lakewood has received from the federal relief funds known as the CARES Act. Lakewood's program provided $2 million in large licenses and registration with the state. Businesses based outside the state and medical marijuana shops were not eligible.

The grants were funded using a portion of the $12.3 million that Lakewood has received from the federal relief funds known as the CARES Act. Lakewood's program provided $2 million in large grants ranging from $5,000 to $30,000 and a $1 million in modest, random-drawing grants of $3,000 to businesses that didn't receive the larger grants.

LAKEWOOD LOCAL BUSINESSES HELPED

Lakewood’s COVID-19 Business Relief and Recovery Program funded $3 million in grants that helped more than 325 small businesses weather the pandemic.

To receive a grant, businesses had to employ 25 or fewer employees, be physically located in Lakewood and meet several other requirements including having a current Lakewood business license and registration with the state. Businesses based outside the state and medical marijuana shops were not eligible.

Residents can make an appointment at Lakewood.org/QuailStreet. Residents must first have an account in the city's reservation system, and those who have registered for a class, reserved a park shelter or have a Silver Sneakers membership already have an account. The reservation system will provide an automated email message to reset account passwords if residents have forgotten their account information.

When making an appointment, select the time, then a specific date. Appointments can only be made more than 24 hours in advance, on a rolling basis. For example, at 10:45 a.m., appointments are available for 11 a.m. or later for the next day when space is available. To accommodate as many customers as possible, each account can only make an appointment every seven days.

Race to find Spot: Win a place in West Metro’s Muster Parade

West Metro Fire Rescue's annual Family Muster will celebrate 26 years in 2020. This year's event will look a bit different than in the past, but there will be plenty of fun for kids and families while meeting social distancing and safety needs. And it all begins online with a virtual contest.

This year, the event includes hosting Race to Find Spot on a specially created website, SpotSpot.org. On the site, kids will find a map of the fire district with each of its 17 fire stations. Each station will have its own webpage with pictures of the rigs and crews. Spot, which is the mascot for the Fire Muster, will be hiding in a photo on each station's webpage.

While on the site, kids and families can get an inside look at West Metro's operations and how the district serves the community. They can also get some valuable safety tips for around the house and the neighborhood.

The first 100 families to tour the fire district map and find Spot the dog in 10 places will earn the opportunity to ride in the Muster parade. The parade will take place at West Metro's Training Center from 10 a.m. to noon on Sept. 26.

During the parade, families will remain in their vehicles as they ride across the Training Center drill grounds. The route will be lined with fire engines, other emergency response rigs and displays. When they enter the parade, families will receive a soft-sided cooler, which they can fill with prizes collected along the parade route.

Join in on the fun! Head to SpotSpot.org to get started in the race to find Spot and claim a place in the Muster parade!
Virtual court

As the pandemic’s stay-at-home order continued last spring, Lakewood’s Municipal Court faced a backlog of court cases stretching more than two months long. "They were really piling up on top of themselves," Municipal Court Administrator Scott Hefty said of the case backlog.

While hearings were occurring daily for those in jail, Municipal Court knew the backlog for other court hearings wasn’t acceptable, and staff searched for a way to still give people their day in court while keeping the public and staff safe.

In partnership with the city’s Information Technology Department, Municipal Court looked at expanding the use of its current video system for arraignments that allows an arrestee to appear in court from jail without having to be in the courtroom. The city contacted the vendor providing the video arraignments to find out how to expand its use and to determine how to proceed. The answer that came back was better than could have been expected.

"There was no additional cost to the City of Lakewood," said Wayne Hall, a senior business relations manager in the IT Department.

The impact of this creative and no-cost solution was significant.

"Since we reopened to the public virtually, we’ve done over 1,500 cases through the virtual process,” Hefty said. Municipal Court reopened on May 18 for in-person hearings, but learn more about how this innovative approach kept court cases moving forward during the warm weather.

Lakewood typically spends about $10 million annually on these efforts, which allows major streets such as West Alameda Avenue to be repaved about every 10 years and collector streets such as West Cedar Drive about every 12 years. Smaller residential streets receive similar maintenance about every 16 years.

It costs about $135,000 a mile to repave an average two-lane street, and the city can typically accomplish about 25-30 miles of repaving annually. The program is funded primarily by a 1/2 cent of the city’s 3 cents sales tax paid by shoppers.

Annual program makes street maintenance a priority

Good roads are important to everyone, and Lakewood’s Public Works Department has been conducting its annual street repaving, rejuvenating, sealing and repair program during the warm weather.

The economic impacts from this year’s COVID-19 pandemic have required the city to make reductions to its annual budget, and the annual street repaving and repair program was reduced by about $2.5 million. In spite of the reductions, Public Works still accomplished a broad range of work that includes replacing worn and damaged layers of asphalt with new asphalt, applying surface preservation treatments to extend the pavement’s life expectancy, and repairing concrete curb, gutters and sidewalks.

Public Works typically publishes during the first quarter of the year a list of streets outlined by ward that will be covered by the program for the year, as well as a map of the streets, at Lakewood.org/StreetRepairs. A video on the page also walks through the city’s complete street maintenance program including pothole repair and crack sealing that covers the city’s 1,400 lane miles of streets. A lane mile is one mile covering one 12-foot lane width.

Some of the major work this year has included repaving Garrison Street from Morrison Road to Jewell Avenue and South Van Gordon Street from West Cedar Drive to West Sixth Avenue.

Residents and businesses, of course, have a stake in how much money and work it takes to keep the city’s roads in good condition, so give street crews a wave and slow down while they are working. After all, they are taking care of city streets so community members can take care of what’s important to them.

Tips for participating in council meetings

Like so much else during the pandemic, City Council meetings have gone virtual, changing how to participate and provide public comment to your elected officials. The city is using a variety of technology to help you stay involved in the discussions and decisions, so follow this outline to know when and how to participate.

Agenda items and presentations
Review the agenda items for each meeting, watch presentations and submit written comments for each council member to review before the meeting by visiting LakewoodSpeaks.org. Presentations for a specific agenda item are prerecorded and available on the website 10 days before each meeting so you can watch it when it's convenient for you. Staff reports, maps and other documents related to an agenda item are also available at the same time, which gives you time to review the details of the topic. Written public comment is taken on the website until noon on the day of the meeting.

Public comment
There are several opportunities to provide the specific kind of public comment you might want to contribute during the meetings.

- AT THE TOP OF THE MEETING: This is the first public comment segment during regular meetings and typically occurs following the pledge of allegiance. This is the time to provide your thoughts and comments on topics that don't relate to anything on that night's agenda. Are you concerned about a park or think City Council should tackle a specific issue? This first segment is when you should provide these kinds of comments.
- CONSENT AGENDA: You can provide comments on resolutions council is considering that night during this segment. Resolutions are used to authorize items such as contracts, fees, policies and procedures, certain payments and specific actions. Resolutions appear only once on the agenda, so this is the time to provide your comments on the specific resolution you are interested in.
- PUBLIC HEARINGS: When City Council is considering a new ordinance, a public hearing will occur to take public testimony when the ordinance appears on the agenda for the second time. Ordinances are used for such items as creating new city laws, amending existing city laws, rezoning property or authorizing the city’s budget. If you want to comment on a specific ordinance, the time to do that is during its public hearing.
- STUDY SESSION: These are just what the name says. City Council studies an issue through in-depth presentations and discussions. One segment of public input occurs during these sessions that provides you the opportunity to comment on the issue being studied.

Mastering Zoom public comment
If you prefer to speak to City Council during the meetings rather than submit written comments, several steps are involved to speak during the council’s current virtual meetings:

1. Check the council agenda for each meeting at Lakewood.org/CouncilMeetings. The agenda is published on Mondays with the phone number you need to dial and the webinar ID you need to enter to provide your comments during the appropriate public comment segment (see above).
2. The phone number and the webinar ID are also shown on the screen during the live broadcast of the meeting and announced several times during the meeting.
3. Dial the phone number, then press the # sign on your dial pad (typically lower right corner) to enter the webinar ID (for example, 987 6543 2100). Then press the # sign again to join the meeting.
4. Listen for when the last four digits of your phone number are called during the meeting. When you hear your number, press * followed by 6 to unmute your phone so that you can speak during the meeting.
5. If you are watching the meeting on your computer or TV, mute the sound on that device to prevent it from interfering with your speaking and being heard on the phone.
6. Hang up when you are finished or stay on hold to speak during another public comment segment.

Watching meetings
You can watch council meetings in any of the follow locations:

- Lakewood.org/CouncilMeetings
- LakewoodSpeaks.org
- Lakewood.org/Live8
- Cable channels 8 and 880
